ALLEGIANT MOVE MANAGEMENT ESTABLISHED TO SERVE GOVERNMENT AGENCIES

ST. LOUIS, July 29, 2003 – Allegiant Move Management, a newly formed company that manages the household goods relocation process for government moves, has opened its offices in St. Louis, Mo. The announcement was made by Mike Engel, president of Allegiant.

Allegiant centralizes carrier management functions thus allowing government traffic managers to focus more of their efforts on other critical tasks. The purpose of Allegiant is to ensure a smooth transition and minimal downtime for government employees by coordinating their household goods relocation activities, including providing personalized secure Web-based information and reporting functions. Allegiant partners with proven transportation service providers from all segments of the moving and storage industry.

“Allegiant brings more than 75 years of high quality relocation expertise to the move management process,” said Engel. “Our individual move coordinators have an average of 18 years experience in the household goods and relocation management fields.”

The newly formed company is backed by the financial strength of UniGroup, Inc., the largest privately held transportation company in the United States with annual revenues of $1.8 billion. UniGroup is the parent company of United Van Lines and Mayflower Transit, as well as Vanliner Insurance, which provides
